THE GREAT PAPER COMEDY.

TARIFF REFORMERS PATRETIC APPEAL FOR FREE TRADE.

[BY BROUGHAM VILLIERS IN "M.A.B."]

The way to spoil children is to give them what they cry for, and it would appear that the best way to enrage Tariff Reformers is to give them what they demand. A most amusing: outcry is not going, on in the newspapers, headed by the Evening Standard and the Daily Express, for the abolition of the restrictions now in force on the import of paper. Needless to say, we have no sympathy with these restrictions. They limit the production of book and papers, raise the price of knowledge to the public, and cause wides mead unemployment in the printing trade, all in order to confer a very doubtful benefit on a few paper manufacturers. But why should we strain our voice in the accents of wrath when those who are as much as anyone else responsible for the paper restrictions are willing to shout themselves hourse on our behalf? The good man will never swearwhen someone else will do his swear-

We prefer to lie low and enjoy the spectacle. We like to see the Express warning Mr. Law that "his-own fiscal policy will be strangled at birth if he hesitates to act now. The staunchest Tariff Reformers"-surely these are the proprietors of the Daily Express themselves !- " are already muttering. that if this is the sort of thing which is to go on under Protection they want none of it." We are glad to find the Evening Standard realising that increased prices mean less trade and more uremployment, no "work for all," as used to be the cry, and having it brought home by painful experience that one man's manufactured article is another's raw material. The following extracts from the Standard's articles of April 29, and, indeed, the whole article, might have appeared in any Free Trade paper, with no loss except to the lover of humour:-- ing for him.

"Before the paper duties were abolished there was no popular Press; books were extravagantly dear, and one of the main solaces of civilised life was denied to the average man and woman. If the paper manufacturers can prevail with the Government, over which they have shown so far so extraordinary an influence, those conditions will be to a large extent reproduced. . . .

The paper maker war to the best of both worlds. He claims protection for his product, but demands that the pulp which he uses shall be imported free. But if pulp is the raw materia of the paper manufacturer, paper is the raw material of the printer and publisher. And the trades which consume paper are far greater. employers of labour than the paper

These people are "hoist with their own petard," but we have no wish to see the trade of the nation suffer with them. The paper trade is simply a typical example of the industry of England, which depends, broadly speaking, on the import of raw materials, like wood pulp, and semi-manufactured articles, like paper, which comes here to be completely manufactured. Hardly a shilling in the pound of our imports consists of fully manufactured goods. Restrictions in other trades will cause just as much damage as this, of which the Express and the Standard complain, only the victims will not enjoy the eloquent support of the Tariff Reform Press.

"THE FOOL OF JOY."

Poetry is vastly more important than politics. Indeed, to paraphrase a well-worn tag about love, politics is of man's life a part, but poetry's his whole existence. Every new poet means something to a man. His work is eagerly examined to see whether that something be little or much. Sometimes it is much. Poems have influenced men, have consoled or encouraged them. Occasionally they have taught them. From "Thirty days hath September" onwards, poems have woven themselves into the fabric of our lives.

If you happen to have met the poet, or if your circumstances seem to be fitted by the poem, (as by Tennyson's "In Memoriam") there is an enhancement of value, such as we find in taking up "The Fool of Joy, by Tom MacInnes, (he of the Canton Tramway Concession). The book is very nicely printed by McClelland. Goodchild, and Stewart, Ltd., of 215 Victoria Street, Toronto. As Longfellow might have said: Should you question, should you

HEPOCRITES BY LAW.

HUSBAND'S REMARKABLE

LETTER TO HIS WIFE.

An extraordinary letter from a husband to his wife was read in the Divorce Court on June 20, when Mr. Justice Coleridge granted a decree of restitution of conjugal rights to Mrs. Isabel Eliza MacKenzie against her husband, Mr. V. St. Clair MacKenzie.

It was stated that the marriage took place in London in 1901, and that trouble occurred last year owing to Mr. MacKenzie's acquaintance with a Miss Carr. He finally left his wife, who wrote asking him to return. In reply she received the following letter, dated "All Fools' Day,

Dear Belle,-I am glad to see your handwriting, and to be able to infer from it that your are in good enough health to write dictation. Unhappily, your letter is not original. see in it the same old weary common form" which apparently lies dogeared and desiccated, and sometimes though not often, teau stained, on the table of every solicitor who accepts a fee to stage manage the worn-out farce which some men and women are compelled by law; to perform for the consolation of domestic cowards, and for the edification of those who believe marriage to be a partnership in a caterer's business. However, one prologue is as good as another in such a piece. Very well! up with the curtain! I do not blame you. I reproach you with nothing. I merely abominate a country which insists on making women hypocrites by Act of Parliament. You ask me to return to you. Where are you living? Where is your home, to which you have removed all the furniture to-day? And why, oh, why did you degrade my sister, whom I love, by asking her to be a sheriff's officer? Does it not all show that your appeal, or rather your solicitors' appeal, is a mockery? Well, you have to play the game, otherwise no such letter, worded by your solicitors and falsely signed by you. could have been sent. You are under influences which I hope may guide you with more success to happiness than ever mine did or could, though, God knows, I tried my best within the range of my poor endurance. You want to be free. You have the right to be. 1 shall not lift a finger to frustrate your desire. You shall have your own way in the end-a woman's crowning victory.

You say—or your solicitors say that you could forgive. Have you ever in seventeen years forgotten anything that was unpleasant? You wrongly accused me of infidelity times out of number. Can you blame the poor devil who is always branded as a blackguard if in the end he is persuaded that he is, and then does his best to play the part?

Yet, lest you may think in the years to come that I have been wholly imjust, let me say now in these probably the last iew words you shall ever receive from me that I shall do my best to outstrip you in forgetfulness of all but kindness. I do not think that you have ever found ma spiteful. I am not now-else I might go to a solicitor and obtain from him some such hideous invoice of bogus affections as that which you or they have sent to me.

I forgive, but, as I hope to be an honest man, I cannot forget, and E do not believe in those who say that they can. If some of my thoughts, in moments of loneliness and silence, could be converted into blessings for some things half unconsciously done by you, you will fare well-I am merely, ad interim, your disreputable husbar d.

The judge interrupted counsel who was reading the letter when he came to the reference that the writer said he "abominated a country, which insists on making women hymocrites by Act of Parliament"

There is a good deal of truth in that, is there not," asked Mr. Justice Coleridge. Mr. Le Bas: What! Abomination of the country? Or does your lordship mean "making women hypocrites"? because I do not agree with the court in that case. The judge! Oh, no, I will withdraw what I said.

MENACE TO THE LIBERTY OF THE PERSON.

Mr. Leslie Scott. K.C., M.P., writes in a home paper:

Jean Jacques Rousseau's remark that "Man is born free, but everywhere he is in chains," was one of the many foolish observations which have become classical.

after he received the papers. The born free. He has been born in an atmosphere of control the intensity of which has varied according to the degree of organisation of the comdom in order to establish his freedom as a member of that community.

That is the first truth about control.

On the other hand, it is not necesend in itself, as many have tried to coived money under false pretences freedom of every citizen to develop he should have been arrested at once his life in his own way. It can only be justified by necessity or common

It is a mistake to dogmatise one Mr. Smith allowed defendant out way or another on this matter. And the Englishman is inclined to dogmatise, for he is the most individual of all men. And that is the meaning of the great cry for freedom from the clutch of control which is going up on all sides. It has nothing to do with his politics; it, is part of his nature. He likes to manage his wn affairs, and refuses to believe that any one else can manage them as well. He likes to stand by himself, reliant on his own energy and enterprise, and he hates to be hampered by forms and officials and regulations and red tape; and, above all, be abhors any interference with personal habits, with the time

Perhaps the ideal type of control s the control exercised by a consable at a busy crossing. His purgeneral flow of traffic, though his method is to demand from each competing stream in turn a certain sur-

The essence of the right kind of control is that it should be exercised by independent, quasi-judicial, or at least impartial, bodies, not by interested bureaucratic departments acting as judges in their own case. Much of the irritation caused among merchants by the Ministry of Food arose from this fact-that they found themselves subject to the restrictions of a despotic department which was actually birch. competing-with them in the same market. The tide-table given below has been compiled at the National Almanac Office London from the result of the analysis of observations taken by means of an automatic tide-recording machine in the Water Police Basin at Tsim Sha Tsui turing the years 1909-9. The zero of the table corresponds with the zero of the sounding in the Admiralty Chart, which has been found to be 4 feet 3 inches below mean sea-level

To obtain the depth of water on the tide gauge at the Victoria Neval Yard add 3 feet 4 inches, and on the gauge at Lamont Dock, Aberdeen, add 10 feet 4 inches to the height given in the table.

MR. TAN JIAK RIM.

THE GOVERNOR'S TRIBUTE AT UNVEILING OF PORTRAIT.

A life size oil painting of the late Mr. Tan Jiak Kim, CM.G., painted by Mr. Low Kway Soo and subscribed for by members of the Chinese com. munity, was unveiled in the Memorial Hall at Suncapore on Aug. 6, by His. Excellency the Governor. His Excel-lency was accompanied by Lady Evelyn Young, and the large company present included the General Officer Commanding (Major General D. H. Ricout, K.B.E., C.B., C.M.G.), the Calonial Secretary (the Hon. Mr. F. M. James, C.M.G.), a number of other Government officials, the Chinese Consul-General (Mr. Tsz Ang. Woohuan), Messrs See Tiong Wah, Tan Kheam Hock, Lian Chia Heng, Yan Ngan Pan, Tan Soo Bin, Tan See Jin Soh Hong Chuan, Org Soon Wuhu Tee, Chia Yew Siang, Ang Hock Hong Wan I Siew, and others.

In asking the Governor to unveil the portrait, the Hon. Dr. Lim Boom American :-Keng, O.B.E., said: Those of us who knew the late Mr. Tan Jiak Kim. Eldridge will have known that his friends had Nanking subscribed for the painting of his Tancerville portrait, which it was arranged, with the consint of the Municipal Commissioners, should be hung in Memprial Hall. The portrait was painted Mr. Low Kway Soo, a local artist. whose knowledge of the art came to him by inspiration and whose study of the masters in Europe and elsewhere has yet to come, but you will have a demonstration when you see the portrait of what art unassisted can do. As to the characteristics of our late friend. I do not think it is necessary for me to dwell on them. At the time His Excellency the Governor and the unofficial members of the Legislative Council referred in detail to his work as an unofficial member for many years of our Legislative Council. As everybody knows, he did a great deal of work outside his Council duties, and for many years was one of the most painstaking citizens of this town as a Municipal Commissioner. One of his great works was the study of the expenditure of the Municipality ,not a very interesting work, I am afraid, to most people, but I know from personal conversation with Mr. Tan Jiak Kim that he always took great pains to study the budget as well as other concerns in which he was interested. There is only one thing I wish to add to the eulogy of his life which has appeared in the Press. I think it has not been sufficiently emphasised that he was a good man, and he has left a great example to the Straits Chinese and to all other classes in The C.M.S.S., Co's. s.s. China sailed Singapore by his unselfish efforts for the town and for the community in which he lived. If for no other reason than this I think he is entitled to be recognised by the public, and, therefore, on behalf of the subscribers, I ask His Excellency to unveil the portrait and to hand it over to the Municipal Commissioners. BRITISH SUBJECTS FOR SIX

GENERATIONS. The Governor said: It is now close on two years since our friend was taken away from us. His family had been for some six generations British subjects (applause), and the mames of his ancestors were well known in this Colony for the reason of the great interest they took in its affairs and the impartial assistance which they gave in forwarding all undertakings for the benefit of the Colony. Dr. Lim Boon Keng has referred to his interests and duties with the Municipality. It is as long ago as 1888 since Mr. Tan Jiak Kim became a Municipal Commissioner on the first Municipality that was established on the elective system. When I came here in 1906 Mr. Tan' Jiak Kim was a member of the Legislative Council, and he remained a member until 1915, when he resigned on account of his health. As soon as I came here I got to know him very well indeed, and I recognised that he was a man gifted with many good qualities. Dr. Lim Boon Keng has referred to the interest that he took not only in depicting Mr. Tan Jiak Kim in full the Chinese but in all the communit- Chinese dress, was then unveiled res of the Colony. What appealed, amidst loud applause, the Governor I think, to all of us was the homely, pulling a cord, which drew aside a kindly and generous disposition large Union Jack. of our old friend. I had many talks those to whom he referred in his to be preserved. sincere and friendly way as "my Chinese." (Applause.) He always forwarded the interests of the Colony. He was one of the founders of the King Edward Medical College. and, like all his fellow countrymen. he was always generous in subscribing to every good cause Mr. Tan Hak Kim, to whom I had the pleasaire of presenting the insignia of the Companionship of the Order n St. Michael and St George over seven (Applause.)
